ganizations. It has also been the graveyard of numerous projects, including newspapers. These facts came to my mind the other day when the matter of forming a semi-military organization here to embrace in its membership the millions of soldiers, sailors and Marines wounded. While we were plucking in the recent near-world war, was being discussed by three prominent the bird for supper and our campfire military men. While talking with these promoters of patriotism I was blazing merrily, the owner of the flock of tame ducks we had fired into, charged down upon us with the G. A. R., United Spanish War Veterans and the Army and two other men and under threats of Wavy Union—came into existence in this city. The National Army, arrests made us deplete our scout Spanish War Veterans, from which has grown the present U. S. Yung to pay for the damage. The organical was formed in Washington in the spring of 1899. The first part of Boy Scouts was born here in 1867; the Knights of Pythias disorganized about 1870. in 1864; the Southern Relief Association in 1885, and the United States History Club, one of a chain of similar clubs, in 1900.

Being impressed by the pathetic story of Damon and Pythias, the late Justus H. Rathbone conceived the idea of uniting in a fraternal association all who believed in the principles expressed in that tale of fealty and brotherly love. There also came into the mind of Rathbone the ancient Arabic story of Ben Adan and the angel of light. So he gathered about him a number of kindred spirits, including the late Clarence Barton, editor of the National Republican for many years, and the formation of Washington Lodge, No. 1, Knights of Pythias, was brought about in the fall of 1864. The grand lodge of the District of Columbia was organized at 518 Tenth street northweat, then the Deaver House, on the evening of May 20, had always been regarded with superstitious awe by the youngsters of the weird and uncanny tales related by the scattered residents of the weird and uncanny tales related by the scattered residents of the vicinity. The very first meet-ing of the founders of the now extensive organization of Knights of Pythias was held there on a storm night. Rathbone, then a governmen clerk, presided, and those in attendance were mostly members of the old Arion Glee Club, with which he was connected. He read the ritual he had prepared to those who had come to gether to form an order based on the great principle of brotherly love and it was adopted and employed by Washington lodge, which was afterwashington lodge, which was after ward merged into Franklin Lodge, No 2. which since has been which since has been recognized as the mother body. First Boy Scouts in 1867.

In the spring of 1867 a number of boys whose playgrounds were in a large lot between Four-and-a-half and Sixth streets, Missouri and Maine avenues northwest, now a public park and part of the mall, conceived the idea of forming a company to be known as the "Boy Scouts." The suggestion for the name came from the splendid scouts who at that time were engaged with the army in the some of the most severe the Indian campaigns that marked the period from 1865 to the early '80's. was one of the boys who formed the scouts, never dreaming that in later years there would be a great organization of Boy Scouts covering practically every country in the world. We selected Nelson Levy as "chief scout," with "Buck" Keleher assistant scout.

One of the principal reasons for forming the organization was because certain residents of Missouri avenue. then a rather aristocratic street, obected to the noise made by the boys and girls at play on the big lot op-posite their residences. The commons was surrounded by a high board fence and was known as the circus g because the shows of that tim exhibitions there. A creek ran through the center of the commons in which boys had arranged a swimming

At the first meeting of the scouts, held in a woodshed in rear of a Mis-souri avenue dwelling, the purposes of the organization were crudely stated by Nelse Levy to be "for fur and pleasure and to do good and not bed, and to go to the woods and fields in the country and make all the noise we please." Plans were laid for the we please." Plans were laid for the first expedition of scouts into God's great outdoors beyond the city limits.
As many of the boys as could afford the outlay of cash invested in what were known in those days as "sixty ent-powder-and-shot-pistols." formidable weapons were made of iron with a single barrel of doubtful caliber and power of resistance, and were loaded from the muzzle with loose powder and a small charge of bird shot. They were provided with nipples upon which small copper caps were placed. Of the twelve lads comprising the first company of Boy Scouts, five provided themselves with these junior muskets and were given preferred assignments in our camp ing-out expeditions. Tents were of mandeered by the scouts from ped chambers of their parents in the shape of sheets, counterpanes, blankets, etc., and the commissary depart ment depended largely on the boys could procure from the larders at their homes. No uniforms were adopted although the matter
